possible service to his master unless he tells him at all times the truth as he sees it, whether that truth be welcome or not. And let me say here, as I may say several times before, that during those talks—when I look back—there is nothing I have not told His Majesty of which I felt he ought to be aware, but never has His Majesty shown any signs of offense, of being hurt at anything I have said to him, and the whole of our discussions have been carried through with an increase, if that were possible, of that mutual respect and regard in which we stood.

I told His Majesty I had two great anxieties—the effect of the continuance of criticism of the King that at that time was proceeding in the American press and the effect it would have in the dominions, and particularly Canada, where it was widespread, and the effect it would have in this country. That was first.

I reminded him of what I have often told him and his brothers in the years past and that is this:

"The crown in this country through centuries has been deprived of many of its prerogatives, but today, while that is true, it stands for far more than it ever had done in its history."

The importance of its integrity is beyond all question far greater than it has ever been, being as it is not only the last link of empire that is left but a guarantee in this country, so long as it exists in that integrity against many evils that have afflicted and afflicted other countries.

"There is no man or woman in this country, to whatever party they may belong, who would not subscribe to that, but while the feeling is very deep on the respect that has grown up in the last three generations for the monarchy, it might not take so long in the face of the kind of criticism to which it was being exposed to lose that power for more rapidly than it was built up. And once lost, I doubt if anything could restore it."

Further meetings were detailed by the Prime Minister until the meeting of November 16, the day the day was cast.

"I cannot go further into the details, but I pointed out to him that the position of the King's wife was different from the position of the wife of any citizen of the country," said the Prime Minister.

"It was part of the price the King has to pay. His wife becomes the Queen. The Queen becomes the wife of the country, and therefore in the choice of the Queen the voice of the people must be heard."

"It is the time expressed in those times which may come to the minds of the many of you."

"He will be his own, for he himself is subject to his birth. He may not, as no valued persons do, choose for himself, for on his choice depends the safety and the health of the whole state."

"And then His Majesty said to me—and I have his permission to tell you this—that he wanted to tell me something that he had long wanted to tell me. He said: 'I am going to marry Mrs. Simpson, and I am prepared to go.'"

"I said: 'Sir, that is most grievous news and it is impossible for me to make any comment on it today.'"

"He told the Queen that night. He told the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester the next day, and the Duke of Kent, and then on the 10th of London, either on Wednesday or Thursday, and for the rest of that week so far as I know, he was considering that point."

Further meetings followed, but the Finals in oats, the wizard from the Peace River, again winning the Treble's wheat sample weighed 72 pounds and his oat sample 55 pounds to the bushel.

"Uniform color, shape and attractive size of my samples were what won for me," said Mr. Treble.

Reporter: What benefit will be derived by the Peace River from your winning?

Mr. Treble: "I have not only made it easier to dispose of my own product, registered wheat and oats, but the winners of the other exhibitors from this country will have the effect of inducing farmers to purchase their seed from the North."

Regret was expressed by Mr. Treble that Jack Allard's sample of wheat had gone astray.

Mr. S. Longman, Field Crops Commissioner, who was at the station when the train for the North pulled out, stated that Jack Allard's sample had not been located.

The Wheat and Oat King said that it had always been his policy to operate in every way with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, the exhibitor of the officials, take full responsibility. It was well to know that these officials have the sole right to handle Alberta's grain exhibits, when placing them in the show, in handling them at the time of judging, and looking after them afterwards.

"It is very unfortunate that Jack Allard, who I understand had an outstanding exhibit, did not take advantage of the assistance offered by the provincial Department of Agriculture," remarked Mr. Treble.

A little more news of the part of the Junior exhibitors here in preparing their samples would have put them up higher in the lists, was Mr. Treble's opinion.

The double-crowned grain King then turned to a discussion of graveling of the Peace River highways.

He said that he had many enquiries with regard to this country. Many expressed the hope that the highway into this country will be put in proper condition so that they can run in their cars and see for themselves the country in which an prize-winning samples have been grown.

"It is up to our government to speed up highway development, and that tourists can come into this country, and I believe they will come by thousands."

CO-OPERATIVE PURCHASE OF PUREBRED STALLIONS

The Department of Agriculture has a plan whereby groups of farmers may secure purebred stallions at a number of points in this area. It is a simple and economical way of securing a good stallion. This should be of great benefit to the farmer, as the supply of horses is becoming depleted and should be replenished. The cost of such a purchase is considerably less than that of the old-time method where an individual owned the stallion.

All districts that are interested are advised to discuss this matter among themselves and to act in touch with their district agriculturalist, G. S. Black, at the nearest point.

Meetings can be arranged while the roads are good, and the opportunity of securing the seed of a stallion you desire is much better now than late in the spring.

GENERAL CO-OPERATIVE STORE OPENING AT FALHER

RECENTLY WELL RECEIVED

Originating from marketing place by the railroad from the district of Falher last June, the co-operative marketing system has grown until Friday, November 20, the Falher General Co-operative Association Limited opened a large store in Falher to serve the wholesale and retail trade of the district.

It is the realization of an ambition sought for many years by Hon. J. Villeneuve, manager and principal partner of the new business, who, in 1929, he established himself in the district, and proved himself a very progressive farmer.

The opening of the Falher General Co-operative Store was no less significant of achievement to Paul Z. Pelletier, secretary-treasurer, who for some time followed with intense interest co-operative methods and had advocated at various times the organizing of farmers along labor union lines.

R. A. Pelletier, federal member for Peace River, gave much of his service and assistance in organizing, buying, and starting up on the basis which has brought success to other co-operative groups.

Encouraging response of the first few days' business in the large well-planned store facing the church prominently and patronage of the extensive range of groceries, dry goods, and other lines was displayed here, and the association's seven directors, including the Falher district, became decidedly optimistic for the new firm's future.

The directors are Louis Desjardins, president; Harman Elmer, vice-president; J. Pelletier, secretary-treasurer; Henri Villeneuve, manager; Marcel Thompson, accountant; Eugene Landry, "Bingo" manager.

The group are working towards co-operation with other co-operative stores at Peace River, Dawson Creek, and smaller merchants by buying in masses quantities.

Mr. Pelletier also plans opening a regular market to distribute products of district farmers.

MAIRIE Dec. 10.—Socialist militancy repelled an insurgent attack today, driving back the fascists in bitter fighting to control the bridge across the Massena River to the Spanish capital.

Prospects For . . .

A letter from the Government of Quebec, Canada, read at the Liquor Control Board was read, setting Frank Donald's application for a license for his new hotel and restaurant, the Murray Hotel, in the city of Quebec.

Hugh Kirby advocated a system of weighing coal for the protection of the coal industry. He proposed an arrangement with the town towards which, if accepted, he would put in a new ten-ton scale and quoted low rates.

On looking over the town's by-laws, Secretary Kees read several clauses which covered this.

A. E. Galtway reported that he had received six street lamp brackets, as provided, arranged, council deciding to place one of them on the Wapiti Road, near Campbell, Wilson & Horne's warehouse, one near the Royal Fruit Wholesale, one on the Boulevard near the Union Oil corner, one across the street from "Curly" Lovell's residence, and another on the Chalmers Road.

Mr. Galtway said they expected to put them up about the end of the year.

Further hearing discussion centered on the fire and light department to be discussed at their future meeting. If followed decided favorably, one would be sent for on trial.
